

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly Arabic or Persian, rendered in dark ink on aged, textured paper. The characters are stylized and connected, with a long horizontal stroke extending from the left side.

Handwritten text in a stylized script, possibly a form of cursive or shorthand, written in dark ink on aged, textured paper. The characters are thick and blocky, with a prominent horizontal stroke at the top. The text is arranged in a single line, with a long, sweeping horizontal stroke above the main body of characters. The paper shows signs of wear, including a vertical crease and some discoloration.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly a signature or a name, written in dark ink on aged, textured paper. The characters are highly stylized and interconnected. The first character on the left is a small, rounded shape with a central opening. The main body of the text consists of several large, sweeping strokes that form a complex, flowing shape. The final character on the right is a simple, vertical rectangular stroke.

Handwritten Chinese characters in seal script (Zhuanshu) on aged paper. The characters are dark and appear to be part of a larger inscription. The visible characters include a large character on the left, followed by a character with a square opening, and a character with a vertical stroke and a hook. The paper shows signs of aging, including a horizontal crease and some dark spots.

Handwritten characters in a stylized script, possibly a form of cursive or shorthand, rendered in dark ink on aged, textured paper. The characters are arranged horizontally and appear to be part of a larger sequence or word.

