

Handwritten text in a medieval script, possibly Gothic or similar, arranged in several lines. The text is written in dark ink on aged, brown parchment. The script is dense and appears to be a form of Latin or a related language. The text is arranged in several lines, with some lines being more prominent than others. The parchment shows signs of wear, including creases and discoloration.

Handwritten text on the right edge of the parchment, oriented vertically. It appears to be a marginal note or a reference, possibly indicating a page number or a specific section. The text is written in a similar medieval script as the main body of text.

Handwritten text in a medieval script, possibly Gothic or Carolingian minuscule, arranged in several lines. The text is written on aged, yellowish-brown parchment. A prominent line of text in the center is written in red ink (rubrication) and reads: In nomine domini Amen. The surrounding text is in black ink and appears to be a liturgical or legal document, though the specific words are difficult to decipher due to the script and fading. The parchment shows signs of wear, including creases and discoloration.

Handwritten text on the right edge of the parchment, oriented vertically. It appears to be a marginal note or a reference, possibly reading "ad litem" or similar, though the script is small and difficult to read.
