

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Pahlavi, on a fragment of parchment. The text is arranged in several lines and includes a prominent red initial or marker. The script is dense and characteristic of the Sassanid or early Islamic periods.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Coptic, on a fragment of papyrus. The text is arranged in approximately six lines. A prominent word in red ink is visible in the second line, likely serving as a section header or a specific marker. The script is dense and characteristic of early Christian manuscripts.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Georgian, on a piece of aged parchment. The text is arranged in several lines and includes some red ink markings, possibly indicating initials or specific words. The script is dense and characteristic of medieval manuscripts.