

Handwritten text in a dark, possibly ink or charcoal, on a light-colored, fibrous paper. The text is written in a cursive or semi-cursive style, likely a form of Indic script. The characters are dark and somewhat irregular, suggesting they were written with a brush or similar tool. The text is arranged in a single line across the middle of the page.

Handwritten text in a dark ink on aged, textured paper. The characters are stylized and appear to be in a non-Latin script. The first character is a large, dark, curved shape. The second character is a dark, circular shape with a central white dot. The third character is a dark, curved shape with a central white dot. The fourth character is a dark, vertical, curved shape. The fifth character is a dark, vertical, curved shape. The sixth character is a red, vertical, curved shape.

