

Fragment of an ancient papyrus scroll with handwritten text in a cursive script, likely from the Dead Sea Scrolls. The text is written in dark ink on a heavily aged, brown, and textured surface. The script is dense and difficult to decipher, but some words are visible, including "Helo" and "Helo" in the central line. The fragment is rectangular with irregular, frayed edges and shows signs of significant wear and tear.

Fragment of an ancient papyrus scroll with several lines of handwritten text in a cursive script, likely from the Dead Sea Scrolls. The text is written in dark ink on a heavily textured, brownish-gold surface. The central line is the most legible and reads:

|| וְהָיָה כִּי יִשְׁמַע ה' אֱלֹהֵינוּ בְּקוֹל הַשֹּׁפָר וְהָיָה יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ ||

The text is arranged in approximately six lines, with some characters appearing to be in a different script or dialect than the central line. The fragment is heavily damaged, with significant fraying and discoloration, particularly at the edges.

|| וְהוּא הוֹדוּ לַיהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ ||

The text is arranged in several lines, with some lines appearing to be part of a larger, partially obscured passage. The script is a form of Hebrew cursive, characteristic of the Dead Sea Scrolls. The papyrus is heavily textured and shows signs of significant wear and tear, including fraying at the edges and some dark spots.

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Gothic or similar, on a piece of aged, brown parchment. The text is arranged in approximately seven lines, with some words appearing to be underlined or written in a slightly larger hand. The script is dense and characteristic of the late Middle Ages. The parchment shows signs of wear, including creases and discoloration.
