

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Coptic, arranged in approximately seven horizontal lines across the length of the papyrus strip. The script is finely inscribed and appears to be a form of early Christian or liturgical text.

Vertical handwritten text on the right edge of the strip, possibly a marginal note or a reference mark.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Cuneiform, arranged in approximately seven horizontal lines across the length of the fragment. The characters are small and densely packed, typical of early writing systems. The text is oriented horizontally along the length of the fragment.

Vertical handwritten text on the right edge of the fragment, possibly a marginal note or a reference mark.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Coptic, arranged in approximately 10 horizontal lines. The script is densely packed and appears to be a form of liturgical or legal text. The characters are dark brown or black, contrasting with the aged, yellowish-brown parchment. The text is written in a cursive style, with some characters appearing to be ligatures. The lines are roughly parallel, following the natural curve of the strip.

Vertical handwritten text on the right edge of the strip, possibly a marginal note or a reference mark.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Tamil, on a strip of aged, yellowed paper. The text is arranged in approximately six horizontal lines. The script is dense and cursive, with many characters appearing to be variations of a few basic forms. The paper shows signs of significant wear, including creases, discoloration, and some small holes or tears, particularly on the left side. The overall appearance is that of an ancient manuscript fragment.
