Fragment of an ancient papyrus scroll with faint, illegible hieroglyphic text.

Handwritten text in a medieval script, possibly a single line of characters, centered on the paper.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a medieval manuscript, written on aged, brown parchment. The text is arranged in approximately six lines, though some characters are obscured by ink bleed-through from the reverse side of the page. The script is dense and characteristic of the late Middle Ages.

Vertical text on the right edge of the parchment, possibly a marginal note or a page number, written in a similar cursive hand.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Coptic, arranged in approximately seven horizontal lines across the length of the fragment. The script is highly stylized and difficult to decipher. The fragment is made of aged, brownish paper with irregular, torn edges. The text is written in dark ink, and the overall appearance is that of an ancient manuscript fragment.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a medieval manuscript, written on aged, yellowish-brown parchment. The text is arranged in several lines, though the script is highly stylized and difficult to decipher. The parchment shows signs of wear, including creases and discoloration.

Vertical text on the right edge of the parchment, possibly a marginal note or a page number, written in a similar cursive script.

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Gothic or similar, on aged parchment. The text is arranged in approximately seven lines, though some characters are obscured by the paper's texture and staining. The script is dense and characteristic of the late Middle Ages.

Vertical text on the right edge of the parchment, possibly a marginal note or a reference to another page.
