

Fragment of a Hebrew manuscript scroll with approximately 10 lines of text in a medieval script. The parchment is aged and shows signs of wear. The text is written in a cursive style, with some words appearing to be in a different script or dialect. The fragment is held in place by a metal strip on the left side.

Fragment of an ancient manuscript with Hebrew text. The text is written in a medieval script, likely a form of Kabbalistic or liturgical Hebrew. The fragment is heavily damaged, with significant tearing and discoloration. The text is arranged in several lines, with some words appearing to be part of a larger phrase or prayer. The script is dense and difficult to decipher due to the damage and the style of the handwriting. Some words are written in red ink, possibly indicating initials or specific parts of the text. The fragment is held in place by a metal strip on the left side.

Fragment of a Hebrew manuscript scroll with several lines of text in a medieval script. The parchment is aged and has irregular, torn edges. The text is written in black ink, with some words or initials highlighted in red ink. The script is dense and appears to be a form of medieval Hebrew or Aramaic. The fragment is held flat against a dark background.

Fragment of a medieval manuscript page with Latin text in Gothic script. The parchment is aged and shows signs of wear. The text is arranged in several lines, with some words in red ink (rubrication). The script is dense and characteristic of the 12th or 13th century.

Fragment of a medieval manuscript page with Latin text in Gothic script. The parchment is aged and shows signs of wear. The text is arranged in several lines, with some words in red ink (rubrication). The script is dense and characteristic of the 12th or 13th century.