

Handwritten text in a dark ink on aged, textured paper. The text is written in a cursive or semi-cursive style and appears to be a name or a short phrase. The characters are somewhat obscured by the paper's texture and some wear.

Handwritten text in a dark, textured ink on aged, fibrous paper. The characters are stylized and appear to be in a non-Latin script, possibly a form of cursive or shorthand. The text is arranged in two lines, with the first line containing two characters and the second line containing six characters. The ink is dark and has a fibrous, almost charcoal-like texture, suggesting it may be made from natural materials. The paper is light brown and shows signs of aging, including creases and discoloration.
