

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a medieval manuscript. The text is arranged in approximately seven lines. A prominent red initial 'C' is visible at the beginning of the second line. The script is dense and characteristic of the late Middle Ages. The parchment is aged and shows signs of wear, including some staining and irregular edges.

Vertical text written along the right edge of the parchment, possibly serving as a marginal note or a page identifier.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a medieval manuscript. The text is written on aged, yellowed parchment with irregular edges. The script is dense and fills most of the page. A prominent red initial or rubric is visible in the middle of the text, marking the beginning of a new section. The text is written in a single column, with some lines starting with a large initial letter. The overall appearance is that of an ancient document, possibly a letter or a page from a book.

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely a liturgical or legal document. The text is written in a dense, cursive hand on aged, yellowed parchment. The script is characteristic of the Carolingian minuscule or a similar medieval hand. The text is arranged in several lines, with some words in red ink (rubrics). The parchment shows signs of wear, including tears and discoloration.
