

Handwritten text in a historical script, likely a form of Old Persian or Avestan, written on aged, yellowed parchment. The text is arranged in approximately seven horizontal lines. Several lines begin with decorative initial letters, possibly '𐬀' or '𐬁', which are characteristic of the script. The characters are finely etched into the surface of the parchment. The text is flanked by vertical red lines on both the left and right sides, which may indicate the edges of a page or a specific section of a larger document. The overall appearance is that of an ancient manuscript fragment.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Georgian, arranged in several lines across the length of the parchment strip. The script is dense and characteristic of medieval manuscripts. The text is written in black ink on aged, yellowish parchment that shows signs of wear and tear, particularly a large hole on the right side.
