

Fragment of a papyrus scroll with faint, illegible markings and a small white stain on the right side.

Fragment of an ancient papyrus scroll with handwritten text in a cursive script, likely Demotic or Hieroglyphic. The text is arranged in several lines across the length of the fragment. The script is dark and appears to be ink or a similar dark pigment. The papyrus is heavily aged, showing significant discoloration and wear, particularly along the edges and in the center. There are several small holes and tears in the material, most notably a large one on the right side. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but clearly ancient document.

Fragment of a papyrus scroll with Greek text, likely a fragment of the Gospel of Matthew. The text is written in a cursive hand and is partially obscured by a large, dark, irregular stain or hole in the center. The fragment is rectangular and shows signs of age and wear.

Fragment of an ancient manuscript on a heavily textured, fibrous, yellowish-brown parchment. The text is written in a dark ink, likely cursive or a similar ancient script, and is arranged in several horizontal lines. The parchment shows significant wear, including numerous scratches, scuffs, and a prominent white stain on the right side. Faint red lines are visible, suggesting a ruled format. The fragment is irregularly shaped with frayed edges.

Handwritten text in an ancient script, likely Coptic, on a fragment of aged, brown parchment. The text is arranged in approximately seven horizontal lines across the length of the strip. The script is dense and cursive, with some characters appearing to be in a different script or dialect than others, possibly indicating a mix of languages or a specific dialect. The parchment is heavily textured and shows signs of significant wear, including a prominent vertical tear near the center and irregular, jagged edges. The overall appearance is that of an ancient, well-preserved but damaged document fragment.
